

This Bursary will assist Psychology students who identify as African Nova Scotian, Indigenous, immigrant, having a disability, 2SLGBTQAI+, or other minority in their pursuit of a graduate degree in the profession of Psychology. This is a $1,000 bursary awarded to an applicant who fulfills the requirements. All applicants will receive a complimentary 1-year APNS student membership and the winner will receive an APNS student membership for as long as they are a psychology student in Nova Scotia (for up to 5 years). Those who have received the bursary in previous years are not eligible to apply. To be considered, the applicant:

1. Must be a Canadian Citizen or permanent resident.
2. Must identify as African Nova Scotian, Indigenous, 2SLGBTQAI+, immigrant, having a disability, or other minority.
3. Must be enrolled at a Nova Scotia university in a graduate degree program in Psychology.
4. Must be enrolled in full or part-time studies in Psychology for the 2022-2023 academic year in a Nova Scotia post-secondary institution in a program approved by the NS Board of Examiners in Psychology. (e.g., Dalhousie, MSVU, SMU, Acadia).

The Selection Committee will evaluate the applications on the 3 areas indicated below. Although all are important, financial need is considered the primary factor, followed by community involvement and career goals.

1. Financial need.
2. Current and past community involvement.
3. Career goals and education achievement.
