

APNS Case Consultation Support Network

APNS is committed to facilitating the networking among psychologists. One way we are doing this is to initiate a Case Consultation Support Network. We are looking for psychologists who are interested in being available for case consultation by other psychologists.

How does it work?

1. This service is available to APNS members only.
2. Volunteers will be asked to complete an APNS form providing relevant contact information, as well as information about their area of practice.
3. APNS would maintain this Roster as a resource for APNS members looking for this service.
4. If an APNS member wants to consult with another psychologist on a case, and appropriate Roster member will be contacted by APNS staff by e-mail with some basic information about the case and the psychologist's contact information.
5. If the Roster member is available to consult staff will connect the individuals who will finalize the details.
6. Although APNS will assist in connecting psychologists through this service, APNS does not take any responsibility for the arrangements made once the contact has been initiated, which may be either pro bono or fee-based.
7. Those interested in having a consultation will contact admin@apns.ca
